COBB

The Cobb is an enormously innovative and versatile, high-quality stainless-steel, portable cooker from South Africa - designed to 'liberate the chef' in all of us.

The Cobb can roast, bake, smoke, fry, broil and BBQ, but is amazingly compact (weighing only 4.0 Kg) and completely portable - ideal for weekends away at the bach or on the boat, but equally at home, err, at home.

This is also a highly efficient unit which uses only around 300 grams of charcoal for 2 hours of cooking (although the efficient compact design means that a 2.0 kg chicken is done in just 1½ hours).

An innovation straight out of Africa, the Cobb was initially designed as a cooking system for people in rural areas. The initial fuel source for the Cobb was dry corn cobs, abundant in rural Africa, hence the grill's name. Compressed charcoal briquettes or Greenfire have replaced the corn cobs.

The Big Green Egg is a modern and innovative take on the ancient oriental 'kamado' oven, which was traditionally made from clay.

The BGE has unparalleled cooking flexibility. You can grill steaks and chops to perfection, cooking at temperatures up to 400°C for steakhouse searing, or cook at a low temperature of 100° to 125°C for the low-and-slow smoke cooking that develops wonderful flavours, whilst tenderising the meat. In addition the Big Green Egg can roast vegetables and even bake bread or pizza.

The simple secret to temperature control is the easily adjustable dampers that let you maintain accuracy within a few degrees. The exterior temperature gauge gives precise temperature readings of the cooker's internal temperature.

For charcoal barbecues, we recommend real lump charcoal, which burns hot and clean and produces a pleasing, authentic flavour.

Cobb Green Fire
sku COBBGF626

Green Fire is made from coconut husks, formed into a block that fits perfectly into the Coob fuel grill, but also suitable for other charcoal barbecues.

The surface of the block is treated with an accelerant, so it lights with one match and is ready to go in about 2 minutes - at which point it burns very hot, with very low emissions for about 2.5 hours.

Big Green Egg Charcoal (10kg)
sku BGECHAR

Lump charcoal burns hotter, longer and cleaner than briquettes. It can also be extinguished and re-used (unlike briquettes which tend to disintegrate).

Derived from plantation-grown timber from Canada.

Showroom pick up only.

EziLite Charcoal (10kg)
sku EZICHAR

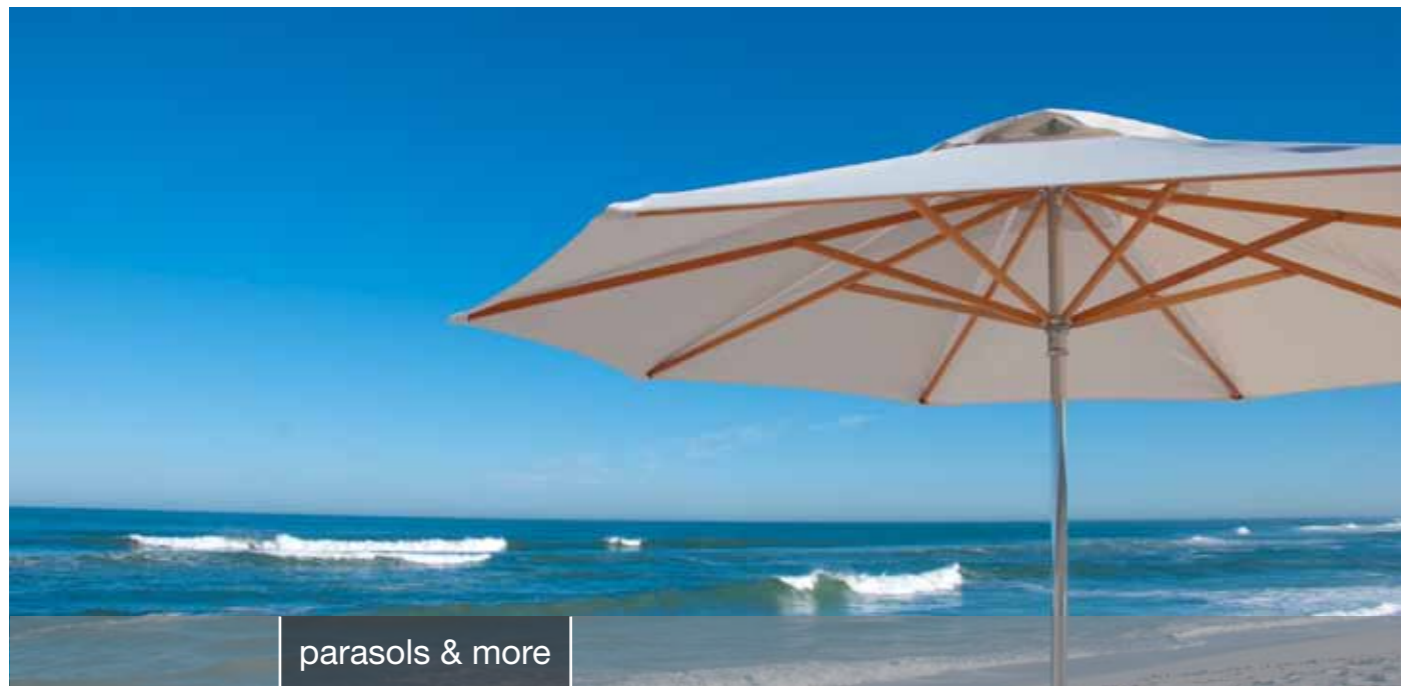

Lump charcoal burns hotter, longer and cleaner than briquettes. It can also be extinguished and re-used (unlike briquettes which tend to disintegrate).

Derived from plantation-grown vitex timber from Indonesia.

Showroom pick up only.

PIVOT

Chimeneas, pronounced (chim-in-aya), is Spanish for fireplace.

The chiminea is a functional work of art that creates a magical ambience by providing the warmth of a fire, the aroma of burning wood and the colourful flickering of flames. They make an elegant addition to any outdoor deck, courtyard or terrace.

As a fireplace Chiminea's are exceptionally heat efficient. In addition to the heat radiated from the mouth, heat is stored in the mass of the cast iron body and conducted to the surrounding air, even long after the fire has gone out.

The ash left from a wood fire is minimal and so the chiminea only needs to be cleaned out occasionally. Any wood resin, or any liquid spillage onto the hot outside surface, can be rubbed off with household cleaner when cold.
